THE NEW RETREAT AT PALM BEACH PROJECTED TO PRODUCE 200 JOBS

Groundbreaking Scheduled for 17th of September

Palm Springs, FL – Retreat at Palm Beach County will construct a $12 million, state of the art, high-end, addiction treatment center in Palm Springs, Florida, less than ten miles south of Palm Beach International Airport. The project will include two buildings totaling approximately 53,800 square feet and will offer amenities such as a dining room, a commercial kitchen, therapy rooms and recreational facilities. The main building will include 107 luxury beds. The second building will be used for medical offices, administration and other support functions.

According to Wayne Burns, CEO, Central Palm Beach County Chamber of Commerce, "Retreat at Palm Beach is projected to create over 200 jobs for operations, plus many more during the construction phase of this project. We are excited that Retreat selected central Palm Beach County for their newest location and we welcome them to the Central Palm Beach County Chamber family."

The new location in Palm Springs, Florida will combine a traditional treatment model with primarily in-network services marking their continued commitment to providing the highest quality of care at an affordable cost.

“With over 50 years of cumulative experience operating similar facilities, our team has a proven track record of delivering results,” says owner and CEO, Peter Schorr. “We are thrilled to become part of the economic vitality of Palm Beach County while also improving the lives of individuals and families.

The builder for the project is D. Stephenson Construction; it is scheduled for completion sometime in the fall of 2015.

The groundbreaking ceremony, which is by invitation only, will be held on Wednesday, September 17, 2014 at 11:00am at 4020 Lake Worth Road. Several company executives, including CEO, Peter Schorr, as well as local dignitaries from around the county will be in attendance.
